

the factors of construction are different because of local conditions, the general principles and methods are up to the highest UK and European standards and it is proving to be a most exciting project," Taylor expressed.

With 10 apartments remaining that are expected to be sold by year-end, Tim Morgan, Managing Director of Cluttons Barbados, said that the prices may increase in December, so any purchasers can enjoy further capital appreciation if they purchase before.

"Financing is available, subject to terms, which has helped both our UK and Barbadian clients. We feel that Weston, St. James is a winner and it is great that the construction has commenced as planned with completion expected in November 2011. Our clients love the development and are looking forward to either moving in or renting their properties out for rental income."

Recently meeting with the developers from Candelisa Barbados and the exclusive real estate agents, Cluttons Barbados, to view the development and plans, Minister of Tourism, the Honourable Richard Sealy, has shown his satisfaction with the development, expressing that he is pleased that construction had commenced as planned and that overseas buyers have chosen Barbados.
